Essay

The pressure of being a college student can be challenge, rewarding and help you grow as person. Most people think if you are a full time student and unemployed, you have all the time in your hand; well that's false. Being a college is just as tough in working in a hard labor job and this not over execrating either. To be able to handle college life you must be emotionally stable, organize and priorities must be straight.

Being a college student can be challenging; when you are the new student. It can be over whelming because it is a completely new world. Your old friend from high are not there with you, so you are sounded with complete strangers. In collage no teachers chase down the hallways for your homework assignments, you're just completely on your own. There are consolors in college that will assist you, but don't help you with every little like the high consolor would. One of the most challenging things a college student can face is paying for school; you are qualifying for financial aid, it can be difficult. In this situation, the student may have to work two jobs, depending on what colleges there are attending. The most devastating situation a student must deal is sacrificing, it means no more hanging out and parting until you get that degree.

Being a college student can bring many awards. The good thing about college student is they have a good future ahead of them; without any worries. You receive a degree that will land you a good paying job. As a collage student, you are highly respect and sometimes treated like if you were royalty by family members and some people. The benefits about being a collage are the opportunities, because you get to decide what you are going to be. When you have a collage degree, some people are envious of that because they don't have what is takes to be that dedicated. The most beautiful award in being a collage student is you are a lot more knowledgeable.
