Romeo and Juliet Character Essay

In Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, Juliet displays immature and passionate as a character trait." For example Juliet falls in love with Romeo and they get married but then her father Capulet wants her to marry Paris. Juliet doesn't want to marry Paris because she loves Romeo and she is married to him but they can't be together because their parents don't get along. An example of how Juliet is passionate would be before Romeo climbs up the balcony she speaks out loud but doesn't know that Romeo is down below her listening. This is what she was saying "O Romeo, Romeo! Wherefore art thou Romeo? Deny thy father and refuse thy name! Or, if thou wilt not, be but sworn my love, And I'll no longer be a Capulet. This would be an example how she really loves married and she doesn't care if her family hates him she is the one that loves and she does want to be with him. Another example would be when Juliet says, "'Tis but thy name that is my enemy. Thou art thyself, though not a Montague. What's Montague? It is nor hand, nor foot, Nor arm, nor face, nor any other part Belonging to a man." She doesn't care that Romeo is a Montague and Juliet doesn't want him to describe him as one. And one more example of Juliet would be when she says, "if they do see thee, they will murder thee." That would be an example of how Juliet cares about Romeo and she doesn't want him to get killed. Juliet is the only character that is really passionate than anyone else.
