Have you ever wondered how bubble gum was made and when it was made. Gum has been around since the Maya were around except it was made from different substances. Gum is a very popular thing world wide and everyone like gum pretty much and that is for sure. Gum is one of the greatest things ever made.

The way bubble gum is made is very interesting. To begin making gum you need to have all of the ingredients. The ingredient usually are sugar, corn syrup, softeners, and flavorings. Then ingredient are then poured into a machine called a extruder and mixed. Finally, you put the gum in temperature control room for about 48 hours. Gum takes a long process but it all pays off.

There is a lot of history behind that yummy bubble gum today and barely anyone knows about it. In 1928 a man named Walter E. Diemer invented the great bubble gum. The weird thing about this is that he was doing another experiment and ended up making bubble gum on accident. Some of the history in gum is very interesting but also weird at the same time.

Bubble Gum can be very different in many ways and tastes. You can get gum that have many different flavors like sour apple, strawberry, grape, watermelon, cherry, and just about any other flavors you can think about. Some also come in many different shapes & sizes. Some of them come in square, bats, triangles, circles, and many more. Bubble gum is really good and will come in all sorts of ways just for whoever wants it.

Bubble gum is just about the greatest thing ever made. The greatest part is the excellent taste. Another great thing is how it comes in just about any way for just the right person. Gum is a very old candy but will always be the best candy. Everyone in the word should be chewing gum because it so sweet and good.
